Student President/Regent Candidates Offer Opinions, Suggestions, Concerns, Solutions

by Hyrum Wilson

On Friday, the four candidates for Student President/Regent squared off in the Nebraska Room in the Milo Bail Student Center for a debate on a few of the main issues that affect the University of Nebraska at Omaha.

Opinions, suggestions, concerns, and solutions all poured out from the stand where the candidates sat. Most of the time they agreed on the issues, but occasionally there came a question where opinions differed.

Candidate Chris Gordon started things off with his opening statement. He emphasized his past work experience with the President and Board of Regents. Gordon concentrated on his positive relationship with the Board of Regents, stating this relationship will help him carry out his promises. He closed by making a statement that he represented a wide variety of students.

Joey Sanchez followed Gordon. He said that, as Student President/Regent, he would focus on both halves of the job, both Student President and Student Regent. He outlined two major concerns on campus. The first was bad press UNO received last year, especially concerning the rape. He also said

UNO has an apathy problem, a problem he is willing to work on.

Next up was Len Hillhouse. His stance appeared to be on being a Student President/Regent for the students, not for himself. He listed a major goal as working directly with students, faculty, and administration to identify, then solve problems plaguing the university. His last remarks included a promise to find out why UNO students' tuition is always increasing.

The last candidate, Tugba Kalafatoglu, stressed that she did not want to be Student President/Regent for the title, rather she wanted to make changes. Although she never addressed the problems she would confront, she did say she would fight for student rights.

The main issue presented to the candidates was student housing, and the possible impacts on recruiting, security, and parking.

Gordon answered first, saying security would be affected, and that it would create more parking problems. He also said that the dorms and halls would generate an increase in students. As for parking, Gordon spoke of an idea to rotate parking, allowing the schools with heavier traffic on certain days to relieve it. He was against the idea of another parking structure.

Sanchez agreed with a few of Gordon's views. Enrollment would go up with the addition of on-campus living areas, and another parking structure was not a viable option. In addressing the parking problem, Sanchez proposed the consolidation of several smaller buildings, like the Criminal Justice Building, the Goodrich Building, the Eppley Administration Building, and the Social Work Building into a single building, freeing up more space for parking. Also, parking at Ak-Sar-Ben is a good idea, but parking in Elmwood Park could be dangerous.

By the time Hillhouse was able to answer the concerns, much had already been said. He did add that campus housing is not what he termed a "done deal." He pledged that if he was elected he would do everything in his power to make dormitories a reality. He also brought up one of the first disagreeing statements. He said that on-campus housing would free up more

Women's College Opens Doors to Men

College Press Service

CHICOPEE, Mass. (CPS) —A women's college in Massachusetts has announced that it will open its doors to men starting next September.

The College of Our Lady of the Elms, also known as Elms College, says the decision was prompted by declining enrollment. The Catholic college has less than 1,300 students.

"This in no way diminishes our commitment to the education of women," said Sister Kathleen Keating, the college's president. "In fact, the experience of other women's college that have admitted men has been that there is a heightened awareness and commitment to the needs of women students because they can no longer be taken for granted."

Still, many students and professors did not welcome the news. Dozens wore yellow ribbons to protest the co-ed policy as they attended a recent meeting of the Board of Trustees.

In announcing its decision to go co-ed, the college cited research that shows 4 percent of students consider attending a women's college, and only about 2 percent actually do.

The college already accepts men as part-time students and as transfers from other colleges.

Keating said the college would immediately begin preparing for the arrival of male students. Dorms are to be renovated, athletic programs revised, and admissions brochures updated.

Candidate Focus: Working Relationships

Gordon

by Stephen Croucher

"Working closely with the University of Nebraska Board of Regents qualifies me to be an effective Student President Regent," said Chris Gordon.

Chris Gordon a senior broadcasting major who is a member of the Order of Omega, Omicron Delta Kappa, Student Alcohol Education Organization, UNO Cheer Team, the Inter Fraternity Council, Theta Chi Fraternity and the Vice Chancellor's Leadership Team is ready to work hard for the University of Nebraska at Omaha.

Gordon said he is running for Student President Regent because he believes, "The university offers a tremendous opportunity to the student and community, and I believe that an individual has a tremendous ability to make a difference here at UNO," Gordon said.

When asked what makes him the most qualified candidate to represent the student body Gordon said, "I have already established a strong working relationship with a variety of student organizations like the athletic department and a number of faculty and staff. I also have a strong working relationship with the Board of Regents, and want to help that working relationship grow."

Gordon also believes that his honesty and ability to look a person in the eye make him a candidate that the students of UNO can trust.

The three issues Gordon wants to address if elected are: the promotion of campus safety, recruitment and retention and he wants to finish UNO housing and make it a reality.

"If we can make students feel safe on campus, then they'll enjoy being here, and want to stay here," Gordon said.

Gateway Opinion

Put Me out of My Misery, Shoot Me!

Ron A. Larsen

Dear World:

Hello out there. Let me introduce myself. My name is Martha and I'm 99 years old. I'm composing this letter in my head. I do that often — it's the only real form of stimulation left to me. I literally can't do anything else.

I would very much like to die.

I've existed here at the Spring Valley Manor since 1985. Came here just after Emil died in the spring that year. I could walk back then. Well, with an aluminum walker, anyway. And I'm using the term "walk" loosely. It was more of a totter. Yet I would love to totter again. Or read a newspaper. Or hear Vivaldi, or rain on a rooftop, or children playing.

You see, I'm a prisoner in my own body. I haven't left this bed under my own power for five years. I haven't been able to speak for the past three. And although my mental faculties seem intact, I hear as through layers of wet blankets; my eyes discern only degrees of darkness and shadow; my taste buds resigned long ago; my nose has betrayed me. I retain only the sense of touch. I feel cold, heat, wet, dry, pain. Yes. I feel pain. Lots of that.

You've no real idea what time and gravity do to the human body. Those two thieves have stolen mine. For decades I was a beautiful woman — vibrant, charming, athletic, and yes, sexy, if you'll forgive the term. Men looked at me carnivorously from my teens until I was past sixty. They all wanted to mate with me, to possess me, to fill me. It seems so curious now. All that bother. All that sweating and fumbling in the dark. Even so...

I now weigh perhaps seventy pounds. I lay curled in a rigid fetal position, my stringy arms crossed over my flaccid breasts, a clawed hand on either side of my chin. I can't move from this position on my own. I've no teeth. Not that it matters. My jaws don't function anyway.

If memory serves, the hair on my head is sparse and the color of spent charcoal. My skin resembles rice paper — dry, thin, and translucent. (It tears at the slightest pressure.) Spidery blue veins play hide-and-seek with the purplish hematomas that cover my arms and legs. Sores and scabs cover my upper forehead. Pus collects and crusts in the corners of my rheumy eyes.

No one wants me now except the mortician.

I spend my days and nights in an isolated twilight, alternating between intervals of fitful sleep and excruciating bouts of all-too-aware consciousness. Every two hours or so, around the clock, nursing aides come in and flip me from one side to the other — presumably to alleviate bedsores. They also change my dirtied cloth diaper, hospital gown, and bedclothes. I'm totally incontinent, you see. Sometimes the aides forget, or are too busy, and I'll lie in my own urine and excrement for hours. So much for those "Happy Golden Years."

Three times a day they attempt a feeding. How? They puree the meals in a blender, and via syringe, squirt this tasteless goo between my gums. I'm trying to starve myself to death, so I gag and dribble most of it back up over my chin. Even if I wanted to, I'm not able to swallow much. Hopefully they won't start tube feeding.

The slightest touch shoots bolts of searing pain throughout my body. This pain differs and transcends the "normal" universal agony I endure. I've some sort of metastasized cancer, I suppose. The aides, who must think me a total vegetable, handle me roughly — unmindful of my torment. I do not blame them. Cleaning a crone's hairless crotch, after all, is an unappetizing assignment. Since I can't speak, I try to whine or groan, but I don't know if they hear or care. I'm more or less a piece of meat to them. Just another mouth to feed, another rear end to wipe.

Do you know what it's like to be unable to scratch an itch or pull up a blanket? Or to lie in your own waste for hours? Do you know the horror of "living" with nearly zero sensory stimulation — other than torturous pain — for days upon days upon weeks upon weeks upon months upon months upon years upon years? No. Of course you don't.

So do not judge my death wish until you've spent a year in this bed with me — bound into a fetal ball, ears cotton-stuffed, blindfolded, and gagged. And please do not speak to me of the sanctity of life. This is not life.

I ask of you: What kind of society mercifully puts beloved Scout or Boots to sleep when they're ancient, broken, and suffering, yet denies that compassion to humans?

Marooned inside this rotted, failed ship; sails tattered and useless; mast snapped in half; hull gutted 'neath the waterline, I send these mental letters as if messages in a bottle. I hope one will find its way to a friendly shore, to a reader who may provide me soft asylum. Push a needle into my veins. Press a pillow to my face. Put a bullet to my head. As an act of love.

Release me.
Sincerely,

Martha

Columnist Hooked on Hockey

Tamra Willett-Johnson

Upon making my acquaintance, folks usually seem surprised when they learn a) I was in the military and b) I love hockey.

I'll address the former another time. About loving hockey, well, maybe folks are surprised because of my avowed hatred of violence.

But the sport has an undeserved reputation for savagery. At its best, hockey is a game of grace and speed played by strong, agile men who most of the time aren't itching for a fight.

But I didn't always see it this way.

My former husband is a New Yorker who played and coached the game. He tried to interest me in hockey, but I refused to watch. "Why would I want to see battered men with no teeth trying to crunch each other out of existence?"

We finally he would of my choos-would watch R a n g e r He never book ('tis sible to make into an appreciation), but I on hockey.

The fast the skillful and the sounds of skates, pucks, and sticks have me spellbound. Players gracefully spin, leap and fly down the rink like ice-bound ballerinas as fans bellow their bravos. By the by, you are not a true hockey connoisseur if you drink more than one beer in the first period, scream for blood and demand violence, or throw anything on the ice — even fake rats, you Florida fans. It was so embarrassing when those drunken people tossed chairs during a Lancers game. Omaha has enough of a hick reputation without that kind of idiocy adding to it, never mind the danger to the players.

Hockey is better than football with its lumbering, earth-bound stop and go play. Better than baseball with its slow hypnotic pace which makes it nice to nap by. And certainly better than basketball, which I detest after being stuck in a room for hours, with no breaks, covering the satellite feed in Alaska for Armed Forces Television. I was in hoopster hell as I waited, legs crossed, stomach growling, lungs crying for a smoke, as the final 30 seconds of a game magically turned into 30 minutes.

other seamlessly, long juicy minutes can go by without a whistle, players move at the speed of sound, and the rules are easy to understand-except for intentionally icing, which I just cannot fathom.

I became a major hockey fan, of the Rangers in particular. I found myself thinking of the players as cousins, or younger brothers. "Oh watch out!" I yelled as a hapless Ranger was charged into the boards by an evil Sutter brother. "Where's your concentration?" I screamed as an off-sides penalty was called during a power play. "You can do it," I chanted, as a Ranger lined up for a penalty shot. The Rangers back then were heartbreakers; a good team, usually making it to the playoffs (which in hockey's multiple tiered play-off system isn't that hard to do) and then choking when it counted most. It was a grand day when they finally won the Stanley cup after years of trying.

I like the European style of hockey better than the all-out-go-for-the-jugular style of so many American teams. Some players, and some teams, seem more interested in dropping gloves and pummeling each other than in playing the game. I hate the fights; they are meaningless and take time away from the sport.

First husband tried to explain that there was some sort of method to the donnybrooks and bench clearing near-riots, but I didn't get it and still don't. I want to see players zip down the ice, make magical behind the back passes, fake out the goalie and score, not bleed from head wounds.

For those of you who haven't watched a game, I suggest you watch the great Wayne Gretzky play (just so happens he is on the Rangers team). Better believe I did a little hockey happy dance when that contract was signed.

Gretzky is beautiful to watch, the prima ballerina of poetry in motion. He rarely gets into a scuffle; when a fight break out he usually grabs the sleeves of an opposing player and they sorta waltz around until it's over. He is on the ice to play, not to even old scores or start new ones. One of his most breathtaking talents is his ability to know where every player is and pass the puck seemingly without looking anywhere but ahead. Even with this team mentality, he has broken records for assists and goals. That he is a handsome lad doesn't hurt either when it comes to watching the game.

So give hockey a try. Now that UNO has its own team, there's no excuse not to experience at least one game in the name of school spirit. The peace-loving among you may soon have friends wondering about your mental status as you shout yourself hoarse during a power-play. I know, it happened to me.

Kiss Them For Me UNO's Fantasy Island

by Joel Stevens

I happen to like serial killer movies. They seemed to have replaced and surpassed horror movies as the latest scary movie fascination. But, serial killer movies are no longer just horror movies with real bad guys, they are good enough to win Academy Awards ("The Silence of the Lambs") and star Morgan Freeman. "Kiss the Girls" is very much a typical "serial thriller" in that way, with Freeman playing a brilliant detective trying to nab an elusive serial killer.

Freeman is Dr. Alex Cross, a forensic psychologist (with a gift, as he says, for determining the "why's and how's" of crimes) and Washington DC homicide detective. He is summoned to Durham, North Carolina after the disappearance of his niece. In North Carolina, Cross stumbles right into a multi-jurisdictional investigation of a serial killer abducting pretty young coeds and calling himself Casanova. Cross's niece (Gina Ravera) is feared Casanova's latest victim.

Of course, Cross gets involved in the investigation, aiding the FBI and local police with his insightful way of profiling serial murderers. Casanova, apparently has been "working" on North Carolina's Tobacco Road for some time and has thus far taken nearly ten women — a "collector" as Cross calls him, using the captive women as his own private harem. Casanova is the perfect serial killer as Cross sees it: leaving no clues, no witnesses and no survivors (he never actually kills his victims, instead leaving them tied to trees in desolate rural areas to die). That is, until one of his victims escapes

A girl begins to whimper in the darkness. A lightning bolt strikes the earth. Thunder crashes around us and we are absorbed into the touching magical story of a little girl named Ti Moune who grows up and is put to a test of love.

University of Nebraska at Omaha's Department of Dramatic Arts (in collaboration with the Department of Music) opens their 97-98 season with the musical "Once on this Island," a musical relatively unknown among the popular musicals that audiences are accustomed to. However, this should not prove it poor or lesser in any way, it's simply distinctive.

It's the story of Ti Moune, who lives on a primitive island that has two distinctive classes living in opposition (as any world does)—the peasants on one side and the wealthy aristocrats with their Mercedes on the other. One day, Ti Moune finds a young wealthy man, Daniel Beauchommes, laying on the ground and injured. Ti Moune, as the Italians would say, is hit by the thunderbolt—she falls in love. However, before Daniel reaches consciousness, he is taken by his people to the side of the island which he belongs. Ti Moune then is set upon a journey to find true love, a journey that is a test of self discovery, of love, and, unfortunately, of loss.

"Once on this Island" Duran Duran Re-Invent Themselves in Medazzaland

from FANTASY, page 7

For some time I had thought of musicals as many do, being silly and nonsensical and believing it absurd and highly abstract to have characters breaking out in song. Now, I detest such accusations. Musicals have survived as the most successful form of theatre because they can reach a part of the human soul that straight dramas or comedies have trouble coming close to. Musicals touch us in some mysterious and omnipresent way. "Once on this Island" worked for me on this level, and although I can snap and jeer at the few flaws, they took me into their fantasy story and made me believe and genuinely care for them (a quality in theatre that one strives for with great difficulty).

Watching the "Once on this Island," meant being transported to some otherness, a world similar to the feel of a Gabriel Garcia Marquez novel, where we are submersed into a fantasy world grounded with earthly passions, with honest desires, and with lively characters that exist within their own spiritual havens.

There are flaws (such as the casts battle against the acoustically challenging theatre), as one would expect with any university production, but it simply doesn't matter. The cast and crew are learning as the audience learns with them—learning of truth and beauty, of honest emotions, of what these musical things are all about. They are on stage giving us something that is very difficult to grasp in theatre, artistic truth.

The musical's ultimate success lay in the hands of director, Jerry Ditter, and musical director, Cina Crisara. Jerry Ditter directs and choreographs with an artistic flair that is a true gift. He is the artist that throws variety onto the canvas and swirls the collage of talents into a unique and captivating vision. His choreography, although at times unpolished, propels the passion and colors the story into interesting picturesque images that adds to the stories' fantastical base.

Cina Crisara, whose gifted talents could be seen in previous university shows such as "Cabaret" and "A Chorus Line," conducts the music with the same fantastical quality the play is directed. The songs, both instrumental and choral, are filled with the bubbly life, energy, and grounded passion that follows Crisara's reputation.

The lead actress, the physically beautiful Leiloni Brewer, in the part of Ti Moune, carries a difficult task on her shoulders, and for the most part, I desperately wanted her to succeed in finding her true love, Daniel (who is played with spunk and softness by Dave Edmonds). However, the dancing and more physical demands of her performance wearied her voice and she was unable to sustain some of the longer and higher notes in her solos. However, as Woody Allen proved in his musical "Everyone Says I Love You," you don't need to be a good singer (which is not to say that Brewer can't sing) to be a success. Her performance is truthful and she attacks her role with sincerity and a believable innocence.

The success of the show also lay in the hands of the energetic storytellers, the vibrant costumes, the inventive props (including fun alligator hand puppets and dazzling umbrellas with tensil to symbolize rain), the towering scrimmed set (which makes for mysterious and magical lighting)—all of the elements of the show blending in perfect harmony toward one vision, one goal, and one fantasy.

"Medazzaland" must be a place where eighties MTV staples go to reinvent themselves and return with a fresh batch of big pop songs.

That, apparently, is where Duran Duran have been for the past four years since the huge success of their multi-platinum "Wedding Album," and their stay has paid off on the new Duran Duran album "Medazzaland."

The "Wedding Album" left us with a band that had matured into an acoustic, adult contemporary pop band, a somewhat satisfying skeleton of what they once were. "Medazzaland" truly takes the band into this decade with the return of their big pop sound mixed with respectable use of nineties electronica. The best transition from the "Wedding Album" to "Medazzaland" is the song "Out of My Mind" which was the first single and lead track from the movie "The Saint." After that it takes a huge jump forward.

"Medazzaland" is a techno spoken word track with a great groove in which "scalpel's" and "knives" allow you to surgically enter this new "land".

What is to be the third single, "The Big Bang Generation," is a glam rock, big beat extravaganza with a classic anthem of a chorus not seen since "The Reflex" in 1983.

That type of chorus is also prominent on the new single and video "Electric Barberella". This song is a tribute to plastic women as featured in the Jane Fonda cult favorite "Barberella," from which Duran Duran got their name. "I'll plug you in, dim the lights, your perfect skin, plastic kiss, Electric Barberella".

The ballads are also big on "Medazzaland." In fact "Who Do You Think You Are" might be a little too big and very dated harkening back to the days of Lo-bay and Foreigner albeit with a much better hook. A much better choice in the ballad category would have to be "Michael You've Got A Lot To Answer For" a very confusing song that I'm going to assume is about a deep friendship that has caught a snag. This track is a beautiful epic ballad in which Simon Lebon's vocals sound their most confident backed up by Nick Rhodes acoustic guitar and a string section. The most intriguing track on the CD is "Silva Halo," a cold and stark simple one verse song that, on purpose or not, provides a nice tribute to Princess Diana, who was a big fan of Duran Duran. "You shine where others fade, you dare to be so brave. Don't compromise no one can touch you, just believe, just believe. Come to heaven silva halo".

Duran Duran have always been a great singles band, and a good album band. Duran Duran do not compile a collection of songs on "Medazzaland" but make a cohesive album an art lost long ago. Even though original Duran Duran member John Taylor didn't make it back from "Medazzaland" (he does play on five tracks) the band sounds stronger and more confident than ever. Let's hope their next journey isn't quite as long but equally satisfying.

Kiss The Girls

from his hidden, underground lair — a beautiful and strong-willed doctor named Kate McTiernan (played very well by Ashley Judd). Kate and Cross are immediately bonded (she spoke to Naomi in the cells) as they try to decipher her cloudy memories and track Casanova down before he strikes again.

But, just as the first witness to Casanova's modus operandi is found, another serial killer is discovered "working" in California, calling himself "the Gentleman Caller," competing and seemingly communicating with Casanova. Cross, his partner Sampson (Bill Nunn) and Kate are after him, trying to put the pieces together before Cross' niece and the remaining victims are lost.

James Patterson's best seller "Kiss the Girls" was a taut, suspenseful and smart thriller, not unlike Thomas Harris' 1990 best seller and Oscar winner "The Silence of Lambs." But as a film it suffers the same charm most books to film adaptations face: how to condense pages of suspense/mystery and dense characterization into a cinematic narrative as engrossing as the written pages of the novel. While Freeman fits as Cross (he could play anybody and I'd believe it) and Judd is very good, the story suffers from its own adaptation. The narrative is over condensed — some of the book's unnecessary scenes are left in where other more important, character building scenes of the killer's and Cross's relationship with McTiernan are excluded — slowing the "human pace" far below that of the suspenseful narrative.

Don't get me wrong, "Kiss the Girls" is not a bad film — Gary Fleder's direction and David Klass's script captures the claustrophobia and suspense in Casanova's lair and Cross' gathering of clues — and it's by no means a perfect film either (what makes Hollywood think that they can make a better ending than the novel's writer in book to film adaptations?). Most serial killer movies have a steady, bloody vein of exploitation running through their uneven history of women as victims, and while that's present here, "Kiss the Girls" just might be good enough to buck the trend.

STUDENT PRESIDENT/REGENT*CHRIS GORDON

COLLEGE: Arts &amp; Sciences

CLASS &amp; MAJOR: Senior/Broadcasting

UNO ORGANIZATIONS: Order of Omega, Omicron Delta Kappa, G.A.M.M.A., Student Alcohol Education Org., UNO Cheer Team, InterFraternity Council, Theta Chi, Vice Chancellor's Leadership Team.

REASON FOR RUNNING: I believe the university offers a tremendous opportunity to the student and community. An effective Student President/Regent works to provide solutions to the obstacles that not only face the university system but our university as well. I also believe in the ability of the individual to make a tremendous difference at UNO.

THREE ISSUES OF MOST CONCERN: 1. Promotion of Campus Safety. 2. Recruitment and Retention. 3. Finish Housing Efforts.

WHAT QUALIFIES YOU FOR OFFICE? I have already established positive working relationships with a variety of student organizations, the athletic department and a number of faculty and staff. I believe in the future success of the University of Nebraska at Omaha as well as the entire University of Nebraska through legitimate leadership building our future.

LEN HILLHOUSE

COLLEGE: Arts &amp; Sciences

CLASS &amp; MAJOR: Senior/Political Science

UNO ORGANIZATIONS: Pi Gamma Mu, Society of Physics Students (President), Student Government, Women's Resource Center

REASON FOR RUNNING: I want to help out both the students and community of UNO. I was saddened that under the current administration (student/Regent) so little has been done to improve the lives of our students. Also SG needs a leader that will give his all for the people of this campus. I see this campus as a family, I don't want anything to happen to that family now or in the future.

THREE ISSUES OF MOST CONCERN: 1. Security, with 5 assaults SG must take positive action. 2. Tuition 3. Continuous support of I,S,T & E, athletics and greater student involvement.

WHAT QUALIFIES YOU FOR OFFICE? I was directly involved in lobbying for UNO/FDR in the summer of 1996. I have been a leader of American soldiers both in peace and war. A am practical, prudent and open minded. Through my work as a math lab T.A. I know how to motivate and help students. I will not stop until we get the results the students want. I am very loyal, and hardworking. Lastly, I have the political contacts and experience to benefit UNO.

TUGBA KALAFATOGLU

COLLEGE: Arts &amp; Sciences

CLASS &amp; MAJOR: Junior/Political Science, Pre-Law

UNO ORGANIZATIONS: S.P.O., CCLR, ISS, Pi Gamma Mu, Omicron Delta Kappa, Zeta Tau Alpha.

REASON FOR RUNNING: My years of involvement at UNO and the community make me the most qualified to serve the best interests of the students at UNO. And I want to give UNO the honest, and trustful leadership that it deserves. I represent the students and want to be their voice.

THREE ISSUES OF MOST CONCERN: 1. Funding for Athletics, Scholarships, Campus Activities. 2. Housing

WHAT QUALIFIES YOU FOR OFFICE? Lobbyist and lobbied for UNO-FDR and Housing. Tugba's leadership will be about representation!

JOEY SANCHEZ

COLLEGE: Public Affairs &amp; Community Service

CLASS &amp; MAJOR: Sophomore/Criminal Justice

UNO ORGANIZATIONS: Criminal Justice Student Organization, Student Government, Assoc. of Latin American Students.

REASON FOR RUNNING: Currently am already involved with several projects for Student Government. I'm already working hard for the students of UNO and there's more work to do.

THREE ISSUES OF MOST CONCERN: 1. Bringing a fall break to this campus. 2. Getting more student involvement on the campus. 3. Retention and graduation rates of minority students.

WHAT QUALIFIES YOU FOR OFFICE? I'm already involved in several projects with student government including a Fall Break Committee, Serious Accident Task Force and others which give me a good working knowledge on the issues and concerns of the students of our university. Also, I have leadership skills developed in school and on the job which gives me the ability to communicate and work with people in an effective, productive manner.

COLLEGE: College of Business Administration

CLASS &amp; MAJOR: Freshman/Business-Accounting

UNO ORGANIZATIONS: Alpha Xi Delta Sorority

REASON FOR RUNNING: To be able to use my leadership skills to improve campus life. Also, to get more involved in the campus community and meet new people.

THREE ISSUES OF MOST CONCERN: 1. Getting the community more involved in what we do on campus. 2. Uniting the students on campus, so that everyone is involved in something. 3. Knowing more about where all of our funds go on the campus.

WHAT QUALIFIES YOU FOR OFFICE? I have good leadership skills and love to get involved with everything on campus. I am open minded and always interested in new ideas! I'm a hard worker. I am also a very social person and get along with everyone. Commitment to people is something I also do very well.

KATHY DENKER

COLLEGE: Education

CLASS &amp; MAJOR: Freshman/Secondary Education

UNO ORGANIZATIONS: Women's Resource Center, Martial Arts Club.

REASON FOR RUNNING: I hope to improve the entire student experience at UNO.

THREE ISSUES OF MOST CONCERN: 1. Safety on Campus 2. Increased awareness of organizations on campus. 3. Decreased student apathy.

WHAT QUALIFIES YOU FOR OFFICE? I am a dedicated person who listens well and sees things through to the end.

FRANK MITCHELL

COLLEGE: Business Administration

CLASS &amp; MAJOR: Freshman/Finance

UNO ORGANIZATIONS: Honors Program, Intramural Sports

REASON FOR RUNNING: I wish to place by abilities and services at the disposal of the freshman class as a fellow student who is interested in the welfare of the student body. I plan to be actively involved in student government throughout college and so I enthusiastically seize the opportunity to serve in the freshman senate.

THREE ISSUES OF MOST CONCERN: At this point I am unfamiliar with many campus issues, but I've noticed an excessive amount of litter strewn around the campus and from personal experience I think scholarship opportunities could be better organized and presented to students.

WHAT QUALIFIES YOU FOR OFFICE? Above all my strong desire to hold office and willingness to fulfill the responsibilities incurred to the best of my ability. From two years of involvement on DECA, a business organization, I gained valuable people skills and learned the art of effective communication.

SOPHOMORE CLASS (2)*AMY ALLEN

COLLEGE: Arts &amp; Sciences

CLASS &amp; MAJOR: Sophomore/Pre-Pharmacy

UNO ORGANIZATIONS: Chi Omega, Student Programming Organization, Pre-Pharmacy Club, Pacesetter Academy.

REASON FOR RUNNING: To become more involved with the issues on campus that concern me.

THREE ISSUES OF MOST CONCERN: 1. Student Involvement. 2. Parking. 3. Athletic Support

WHAT QUALIFIES YOU FOR OFFICE? I have excellent leadership qualities and I am young and eager to make a difference on campus.

DAVE SJOBERG

COLLEGE: Public Affairs &amp; Community Service

CLASS &amp; MAJOR: Sophomore/Criminal Justice

UNO ORGANIZATIONS: None listed

REASON FOR RUNNING: I would like to look back over my education here at UNO and know that I gave something back and that I left it a better place.

THREE ISSUES OF MOST CONCERN: 1. Increase of school spirit through greater participation in student organizations and more interaction between them. 2. Greater community involvement. 3. Expansion of school grounds.

WHAT QUALIFIES YOU FOR OFFICE? First I am organized. Second, I have a sense as to where UNO is and a vision of where it can go. I hold leadership qualities which I feel are necessary. I feel I'm in touch with the common student and open minded enough to accept ideas from the not so average student.

SCOTT THOMAS

COLLEGE: Arts &amp; Sciences

CLASS &amp; MAJOR: Sophomore/Biology

UNO ORGANIZATIONS: Honors Program, Goodrich Program, Club Soccer

REASON FOR RUNNING: There is always a need for people to step up and assume a leadership role, and I feel that both the students and myself will benefit if I am chosen as their representative. They will have someone who cares about their opinion and I will gain valuable leadership experience.

THREE ISSUES OF MOST CONCERN: 1. Adding dorms. 2. Parking. 3. Racial/Ethnic relations.

WHAT QUALIFIES YOU FOR OFFICE? Other student government organizations I have been involved with have given me both experience and a working knowledge of parliamentary procedure. More importantly, I have a genuine interest in others that will help me to voice their opinions regarding the university, and I am dedicated to making sure the student voice is heard.

JUNIOR CLASS (2)*JASON BANKS

COLLEGE: Arts &amp; Sciences

CLASS &amp; MAJOR: Junior/Religion

UNO ORGANIZATIONS: SG-UNO (94-95), Engineering Executive Board (95), Symphonic Band (95).

REASON FOR RUNNING: The main reason I have for running is the fact that I enjoy serving the public. I feel that I would be a strong voice within the senate to see that all sides will benefit. Plus, from my past experience, it is a lot of fun along with all the work.

THREE ISSUES OF MOST CONCERN: 1. Problems of parking. 2. The seeing through of building residence halls. 3. Making sure no one is forgotten by anyone.

WHAT QUALIFIES YOU FOR OFFICE? I feel that I have many qualities that qualify me for office. First and foremost, I represented the College of Engineering in student senate my freshman year. I feel that I also have a keen sense on what happens and is supposed to be happening within the governing bodies. Plus, the leadership abilities that I have would be an asset for all students at UNO.

CHRISSY BARNES

COLLEGE: Arts &amp; Sciences

CLASS &amp; MAJOR: Junior/Political Science

UNO ORGANIZATIONS: Transfer student, none listed for UNO.

REASON FOR RUNNING: I am running for senate as a junior representative because I am interested in UNO. I have a desire to participate in an organization where I can make a difference on campus. I believe that I am a voice. I possess many qualities including leadership skills, experience, wisdom, and a desire to make a difference. As a transfer student I believe that I can bring in fresh new ideas as well as an open-mind for what is true, important and good for UNO.

THREE ISSUES OF MOST CONCERN: 1. Student retention through involvement. 2. Good faculty/student relationships. 3. Student safety, wellness and equal treatment on campus.

WHAT QUALIFIES YOU FOR OFFICE? Besides previous involvement in student government, I am qualified for office because of my great desire to serve my junior class at UNO. I will do my best to represent the concerns and ideals of my class and the overall student body. I feel I can be someone who can achieve the desired results of the people who come to me with their concerns, interests, and ideas. My experience from volunteering at nursing homes, homeless shelters, church groups and campaign offices reflects by desire to serve others and to do so successfully. I feel I am best qualified for this office because my number one goal is the overall betterment of the school and its students.

MICHAELA KING

COLLEGE: Fine Arts

CLASS &amp; MAJOR: Junior/Art Therapy-Education

UNO ORGANIZATIONS: Alpha Xi Delta Sorority, Art Club

REASON FOR RUNNING: Want to be involved and have a voice in all areas of student life. Have activities for all students to participate in and to promote unity and pride of UNO. Also to make UNO into a more college life campus not so much a commuter university.

THREE ISSUES OF MOST CONCERN: 1. UNO student life — promote activities, dances, etc. 2. Security. 3. Funds, more going to FB and hockey team, not wrestling, VB, etc.

WHAT QUALIFIES YOU FOR OFFICE? Determined, outgoing, energetic, leadership, self-starter, takes initiative, intelligent.

SENIOR CLASS (2)*MIKE BAUER

COLLEGE: Arts &amp; Sciences

CLASS &amp; MAJOR: Senior/Chemistry

UNO ORGANIZATIONS: Concert Choir, UNO Chemistry Club, Student Government, UNO Athletic Committee Member

REASON FOR RUNNING: I would like to be more involved on campus and with the current issues affecting my self as a student and students of the future.

THREE ISSUES OF MOST CONCERN: 1. Campus Housing. 2. Fall break. 3. Athletics.

WHAT QUALIFIES YOU FOR OFFICE? I have been involved as a student leader for two years previous to attending UNO at McCook Community College. I am presently a UNO Student Government senator.

REASON FOR RUNNING: To be a voice for the students. I've seen the way things have improved here at UNO the past four years and hope that I can continue the changes for the better.

THREE ISSUES OF MOST CON-CERN: 1. Students receiving more of a say in what's done with our tuition money. 2. Expand opportunities for students to learn in more than just the classroom. 3. Improving overall communication here at UNO.

WHAT QUALIFIES YOU FOR OFFICE? I have held office as vice-president and president so I know what it takes to be a leader — dedication, organization, and a positive attitude. I am a strong person who wants to leave an imprint for our future here at UNO.

ARTS & SCIENCES (5)

TASHA BROOKS

REASON FOR RUNNING: I would like to play a role in the decision making on campus that affects myself and other students. As a non-traditional student in the college of Arts campus, particularly athletics, do not receive the recognition and support which they deserve. Through my commitment to Student senate, I hope to promote attendance and involvement in these activities through education between the organizations themselves.

THREE ISSUES OF MOST CON-CERN: 1. Promotion of involvement in athletics and campus agencies. 2.
Support of current housing proposals and encouragement of further development. 3. Reduction in hate crimes and prejudice through school policies, agency involvement and education.

WHAT QUALIFIES YOU FOR

of policy procedure and development.
As a regents scholar who doesn't work during school, I have both the time and the energy to dedicate myself to the senate and to the ideals which it upholds. I am currently the junior class rep and am serving on the Student Af-

WHAT QUALIFIES YOU FOR OFFICE? I am a very motivated, strong willed leader and I would like to be involved in helping the university better itself.

AMY KOPOCIS
CLASS & MAJOR: Junior/Pre-
Law, Political Science
UNO ORGANIZATIONS: Alpha
Xi Delta, College Republicans, Student Programming Organization

REASON FOR RUNNING: Make a difference on campus, gain valuable leadership experience and represent the student body with care, respect and class. I want each student to be as excited and proud of UNOmaha as I am.

THREE ISSUES OF MOST CON-CERN: 1. The parking situation. 2.
Getting dorms for UNOmaha. 3.
UNOmaha's public relations (i.e.: school spirit, the MAVS, UNO Hockey,
the radio station, KBUL, etc.)

WHAT QUALIFIES YOU FOR OFFICE? I am dedicated, organized, and an effective leader. I truly care about UNOmaha because I am proud to be a student here. I want to better UNOmaha's image (already improving by leaps and bounds). I have creativity, commitment and the positive leadership that can do that.

Radio, Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity.

REASON FOR RUNNING: I want to bring my experience and talent to UNO Student Government. UNO is entering an era of enormous progress and I want to help lead the way.

THREE ISSUES OF MOST CON-CERN: 1. Lack of leadership in Student Government. 2. Lack of student housing and residence halls. 3. Campus apathy.

WHAT QUALIFIES YOU FOR

OFFICE? My willingness to be decisive and my desire to make campus life better.

REASON FOR RUNNING: I am running for senate because I believe that this will be an excellent experience for me in that my future career goals include the U.S. Senate. I also believe that this will be a fun yet challenging way to be involved on campus.

THREE ISSUES OF MOST CON-CERN: 1. Quality student security.
2. Greater library resources and equipment. 3. Student housing.

WHAT QUALIFIES YOU FOR OFFICE? I have experience with another college's student government as a representative. I believe that I am a team player, good at compromise and handling difficult situations.

BEVERLY POLL
CLASS & MAJOR: Junior/Philosophy and Political Science
UNO ORGANIZATIONS: Pi

REASON FOR RUNNING: I would like the experience of being a student representative and I feel I could do a good job.

THREE ISSUES OF MOST CON-CERN: 1. Parking problems. 2. Student safety on campus. 3. Attendance on Fridays and the need for schedule changes.

WHAT QUALIFIES YOU FOR OFFICE? The best qualification I can think of is by desire to see UNO eventually become a college that is one step above other colleges in the area and I am willing to take the steps necessary to achieve this.

REASON FOR RUNNING: I love to be involved. I have lots of different ideas and would like to see them happen.

THREE ISSUES OF MOST CON-CERN: 1. More people getting involved. 2. More people informed on how great UNO is. 3. More people to know what student government does.

WHAT QUALIFIES YOU FOR

around campus. I would also like to help out with the problems of student apathy and our freshman dropout rate.

THREE ISSUES OF MOST CON-CERN: 1. Freshman dropout rate. 2.
Student apathy. 3. Communication between faculty and staff.

WHAT QUALIFIES YOU FOR OFFICE? I have what I feel to be a strong leadership ability as well as

REASON FOR RUNNING: As a student at UNO, I want to be part of how my school works. I want to have say in how things happen at UNO. I don't want to just sit on the sidelines and say, "Things should be this way, of things should be that way." I want to help make an impact.

THREE ISSUES OF MOST CON-CERN: 1. The way UNO's money is budgeted and spent. 2. UNO's connections to the community. 3. Greater representation of the student body - a broader range of students.

WHAT QUALIFIES YOU FOR OFFICE? I am qualified to this office for several reasons. Mainly though, I represent a variety of areas of interest on campus. I get to talk to a great range of different people, there by making it easy for me to discover that people re-

Mavs Sink the Augustana Vikings

Mavs post 35-6 win over Augustana and tie for second in NCC

By Andy Nordmeier

Sioux Falls, S.D.- Tight end Brian Benjamin made three touchdown catches and led the Mav football team to a 35-6 win over the Augustana Vikings Saturday afternoon on a windy Howard Wood Field. The game was played under clouds with a stiff 25 mph wind that gusts to 45 mph at times.

The Mavs now stand at 5-1, 3-1 tied for second in the North Central Conference, while the Vikings fall to 3-3, 1-3 in NCC play with the loss.

"This game was a combination of everyone playing pretty well," Mav Head Coach Pat Behrns said, "the key to this game was our ball control in the first and third quarters."

Those were the quarters when the Vikings had the wind at their backs, but only had possession for 3:17 and 3:30 of the first and third quarters, respectively.

The Mavs opened the scoring 11:36 into the game when Benjamin caught his first touchdown from quarterback Ed Thompson. Thompson rolled to his right, but threw left to a wide-open Benjamin for a 2-yard score on fourth-and-goal. Paul Kosel added the extra point to give the Mavs an early 7-0 lead. Running back Adam Wright and Fullback Micky Koory each had runs of over 15 yards on the drive.

"It's just a matter of getting people off-guard and throwing the ball a few times," Thompson said. "It was a great team effort."

The drive may have cost the Mavs another offensive weapon. Running back Melvin McPhaul left the game with a strained medial collateral ligament in his knee. His status is uncertain for next week.

Early in the second quarter, Benjamin and Thompson connected again. This time, Thompson (6-12 passing, 63 yards, 3TD) floated the ball to Benjamin in the back of the end zone for a 6-yard touchdown pass. Kosel added the extra point to push the bulge to 14-0 44 seconds into the second quarter. Tailback Jeff Herdzina kept the drive alive by ripping off a 39-yard gain on fourth-and-two from the Viking 46-yard line.

"The throws were perfect, right at chest level," Benjamin said "they were good throws by the quarterbacks."

The Vikings struck back with 7:33 left in the half when quarterback Eric DeGraff found wide receiver Chad Gomarko behind the Mav secondary for a 69-yard touchdown pass. Gomarko slipped out of two tackles on his way to the end zone. Mother Nature pushed Scott Price's extra point attempt wide to the right and left the score at 14-6.

The defensive front four, Brent Neben, Jason Morris, Jay Wineinger, and Terrell Spears helped to shut down the Viking offense by allowing 10 yards on 10 carries in the first half. They also held the Vikings to four first downs and limited the Vikings' time of possession to 10:29 of the half.

The offensive line, Brian Jarrett, Chris Bober, Bob Wegner, Dan Potmesil, and Brian Donohue opened up several running lanes that led to 189 rushing yards in the first half and 14 Mav first downs.

"Our linemen did a good job on Saturday," Behrns said, "We did a decent job pushing them off of the line and being physical."

In the second half, the Mavs returned to the smothering defense and explosive offense that has been their hallmark this season.

The Mavs took their first possession of the second half into the end zone to pad the lead to 21-6. The Mavs drove from their 4-yard line to the end zone in 15 plays and consuming 7:39 of the third quarter. This time, Thompson hit flanker Jay Uphoff for a 25-yard scoring strike on fourth-and-eight. A 15-yard penalty for a late hit helped bring the Mavs to midfield and continue their march.

The defense made their presence felt on the Vikings next play from scrimmage as Nathan Tate picked off a DeGraff pass at the Mav 35. A 10-yard penalty for holding sent the Mavs back to their 25-yard line. However, the Vikings received a 15-yard unsportsmanlike conduct penalty that brought the Mavs to their 40.

The offense capitalized on the turnover by taking it to the end zone

Lady Mavs "Kill" Morningside and South Dakota

Overall Record for Mavs Jumps to 14-6

The Lady Mavs overcame both Morningside and South Dakota this weekend in straight sets, 15-4, 15-9, 15-3 and 15-5, 15-5, 15-10, respectively.

Boosting their season record in the North Central Conference to 8-1 and 14-6 overall, the Lady Mavs were pleased with their wins this weekend.

Friday night against Morningside, the Lady Mavs overcame Morningside in set assists, service aces, digs, blocks and kills. Erin Shafer led the Lady Mavs in attacks with 22, followed by Tracy Ankeny with 19 and Krista Niezwagg with 16.

The game was a quick, easy and relatively painless win for the Lady Mavs, as they finished it in only 1 hour and 10 minutes in front of 380 fans.

Saturday night was a repeat performance as the Lady Mavs again dominated against South Dakota. Shafer led the Lady Mavs again with 21 attacks, followed once again by Ankeny with 23 and Tanya Cate with 2. The Lady Mavs out-digged South Dakota 56-48, which was plagued with 6 service errors and possessed only 34 set assists.

From FOOTBALL, page12

in seven plays. Koory and Herdzina carried the Mavs the distance. Koory picked up 18 yards and Herdzina gained the other 42, including the final 12 on a sweep around the left side for a touchdown to make the score 28-6 with the PAT.

The fourth quarter saw Curtis Miller (1-1, 9 yards, TD) get playing time at quarterback and he made the most of it by connecting with Benjamin (4 catches, 35 yards, 3TD) for the final touchdown of the game. Miller and Benjamin each rolled left and hooked up on a 9-yard touchdown. Kosel's fifth PAT of the game made the final score 35-6.

The defense made sure the Vikings would not come back into the game. Jay Wineinger sacked quarterback Michael Allen for a 10-yard loss and Robert Brown intercepted Allen on fourth down to seal the victory.

The Mavs were not bitten by the turnover bug for the first time this season.

"When you run 92 plays and any time you don't turnover the ball in that many plays that's pretty good," Behrns said.

With the win, Behrns' record improves to 19-21 with the Mavs and 55-47 overall. Viking coach Jim Heintz drops to 45-58-1 following the loss. Up next for the Mavs are the Jackrabbits of South Dakota State. They are coming off of a 20-16 win over St. Cloud State on Saturday.

Sidelines

Edwards to lead inaugural Mav team

Jeff Edwards was voted by his teammates Saturday to be the UNO Mavs' team captain for the season. The sophomore Elk Grove, Ill. native was the captain of the Omaha Lancers last season. The Mavs will open their season this Friday at 7:05 p.m. against the University of Manitoba at the Civic Auditorium.

Basketball season almost underway

Both the women's and men's basketball teams held their media/photo days yesterday in the Fieldhouse. Their seasons will officially begin Wednesday with the first practice. The women will hold their first exhibition game against the Nebraska All-Stars at 7 p.m. on November 6. On Oct. 30 the men will play the annual Red and Black Rumble intrasquad scrimmage at 6 p.m. Both games will take place in the Fieldhouse.

Study Suggests Legalization Of Marijuana Does Not Lead To Increase Usage

By Colleen De Baise
College Press Service

BERKELEY, Calif.—At coffee shops in the Netherlands, there's more than latté on the menu.

For the past 20 years, Dutch laws have allowed the sale of marijuana at coffee shops, which often maintain inventories of up to 500 grams.

That's radically different than the U.S. drug policy, which continues to forbid the sale or possession of marijuana.

A new study indicates that widespread availability of the drug at places such as coffee shops is linked to a steep rise in its use, especially among young adults. At the same time, the study suggests that getting rid of criminal penalties for smoking marijuana doesn't prompt more people to light up.

The study, appearing in the Oct. 3 issue of Science, compares the Netherlands, which relaxed enforcement of marijuana laws in 1976, with the U.S. and other nations.

"For years we've heard arguments for and against drug legalization," said Robert MacCoun, a professor at the University of California at Berkeley. "There are lots of claims about the effects of the liberal Dutch cannabis policy, but the two sides disagree completely on what actually happened there."

He and co-author Peter Reuter, a University of Maryland professor, found that Dutch rates of marijuana use are even with the United States, despite radically different drug policies.

But that masks two important trends in the Netherlands, the authors say. Marijuana use remained well below U.S. levels for years after marijuana laws eased up, but rose sharply when the drug became broadly available at coffee shops in the '80s.

According to Dutch law, marijuana or cannabis is illegal. But in 1976 the Dutch adopted a policy of non-enforcement for possession or sale of up to 30 grams of cannabis, which is more than most marijuana users consume in an entire month.

The Dutch also allowed sales at coffee shops, which can stock as much as 500 grams. During the early years, the shops were scarce and kept a low-profile—indicating, the authors say, that the initial "depenalization era" had little effect on levels of use.

But in the 1980s, coffee shops grew in number—by at least tenfold in Amsterdam, for instance—and became more accessible.

"You now find them in the central business districts, right next to bakeries and department stores," said MacCoun. "They do sell coffee, but if you ask, they'll show you a menu with samples of hash and different strains of marijuana."

Customers are most often young adults, including tourists, and prices are similar to the United States. The overall effect, said Reuter, "was to make cannabis readily available at minimal legal risk to interested Dutch adults."

During this time, the report found that marijuana use increased "consistently and sharply." Among 18-year-olds, those who admitted having used the drug climbed from 15 percent in 1984 to 44 percent in 1996.

While use in the United States and other nations has climbed sharply in the last four years, the jump in Dutch sales from 1984 to 1992 occurred in an era of flat or declining use elsewhere. This, said Reuter, seems to implicate the coffee shops as culprits in the increase.

"It is striking that the expansion of the coffee shops was followed by a growth in use," he said.

The authors caution, however, that the upward trend may reverse itself. The Dutch recently reduced the possession limit from 30 grams to 5 grams and began aggressively enforcing rules against promotion, closing the most problematic coffee shops.

Though the steep increase in use among the Dutch raises troubling questions about legalization, other aspects of the Dutch experience look promising.

"During the depenalization era, the Dutch stopped punishing low-level marijuana transactions without any detectable increase in use, much like the experience in states that decriminalized marijuana possession during the 1970s," MacCoun said. "So depenalizing drugs and allowing legal commercial sales should be considered two very different interventions."

The Dutch adopted their tolerant policy in part to separate the soft and hard drug markets, theorizing that this might weaken the so-called "gateway" link—the concept that marijuana users are more likely than non-users to move on to hard drugs.

This study suggests the Dutch may have had some success in this regard. The probability of trying cocaine among marijuana users is 22 percent in Amsterdam, but 33 percent in the United States.

The study was funded by the RAND Drug Policy and Research Center.

Response To Stroke

American Heart Association

Only 29% of those surveyed would call 911 or go to the emergency room for unexplained dizziness and lost vision in one eye that lasts more than 15 minutes.

If YOU have any stroke warning signs, don't wait. To minimize brain injury, call an ambulance and get to the hospital as soon as possible.

9 Chickweed Lane

THE THING IS, ROSBY, SOMETHING'S BEEN BOTHERING ME, AND I NEED AN OLD FRIEND I CAN TALK TO...

THIS MAY SURPRISE YOU, BUT I'VE BEEN A LITTLE DIFFICULT TO DEAL WITH LATELY...

WHEN YOU'RE QUITE FINISHED GASPING "LATELY"? I'LL CONTINUE.

9 Chickweed Lane

ROSBY, WHAT DID WE DO WHEN WE WERE KIDS AND LIFE STARTED SEEMING A LITTLE DIFFICULT TO COPE WITH?

DO YOU HAVE AN OLD BARBIE AROUND? I NEED TO DISMEMBER ITS NAKED BODY AND IMPALE THE TORSO ON A PENCIL AS A GRISLY LESSON TO OTHERS.

I ALREADY TRIED THAT... MY MOOD IMPROVED ONLY SLIGHTLY.
